INTRODUCTION

The full Directory contains 583 pages and the Shippers' Guide contains 171 pages. The Directory and Shippers' Guide are bound together. I have copied the entries in both the Directory and Shippers' Guide for DeKalb County Towns.

Some of the names are curious. Jarvis is listed in the Directory and Norristown in the Shippers' Guide. Waterloo City is listed both the Directory and Shippers' Guide, along with Uniontown.

There is no Saint Joe, Auburn Junction, nor Garrett, as they had not yet been established.

The Shippers' Guide was used to provide data as to what railroads would be used to ship goods to or from particular towns. The abbreviations for the railroads and express companies are set forth at the beginning of the Shippers' Guide.

The Shippers' Guide must be read over two pages. In the original book, the pages face each other but in this copy one page follows another. For example, the Norristown entry on page 110 must be read horizontally across to page 111.

The index has been prepared by Roselyn Wells and Amanda Wells on behalf of the DeKalb County Genealogy Society. The page numbers in the original Directory and Shippers' Guide have been retained.

The title page is dated 1868. The copyright is dated 1867. Presumably this information was compiled in 1867.

This Directory is undoubtedly the earliest Directory containing references to DeKalb County Towns.

The county seat of DeKalb county, situated on the projected Logansport & Northern Indiana Railroad, four and a half miles from Waterloo, and twenty-two miles north of Fort Wayne. It is a pleasant and thriving town of about eight hundred inhabitants, and is rapidly increasing. The projected railroad is being pushed forward with considerable energy, and will make this one of the finest county seats in the State. It has a commodious court house erected at a cost of $30,000, an excellent school, three churches, two hotels, a new paper mill, flour mill, carriage manufactory, and various business houses.
